Exercise 24

MORE WITH HTML FORMS

You used some form elements in previous exercises when you worked with checkboxes and radio buttons. In this exercise, you'll get a chance to try out some other form elements. Run the repl and you should see something like this:

Enter your first name

| First name |

Enter your last name

| Last name |

Which continent are you from?

| Africa ⬍ |

| OK |

Right now, nothing "works" — that is, clicking the button won't do anything. Baby steps...

Study the HTML elements to see how they work. Then look at how I did the CSS for those.

☐ Your task is to create three more text inputs: city, state, and zip and add another select box that asks the user to choose their favorite type of food (Italian, Mexican, etc.)
